The cardboard tubes also made great tunnels for the cars!

Theo also enjoyed making the cars go through the tunnels way up high and then watching them fall into the sensory bin.

All-The-Time Snacks: Watermelon Cookies

Having grown up back East, it still amazes me that in the middle of July I should be getting ready for back to school! As a child, the summer was just getting started. So, while I resign myself to school supply shopping and first days of school looming, I also can't quite let go of summer fun!

Not so long ago, I was a Pre-K teacher. A large part of our classroom goals centered around developing independence with the children and having them make careful choices. One area that we stressed was learning the difference between all-the-time foods and some-of-the-time foods. It wasn't about placing judgment on one kind of food over another - there is a place for all kinds. It was about helping the children understand that all-the-time foods were just that - items that could be chosen at just about any time of the day. Items like fruit, vegetables, tuna sandwiches, chicken, cheese quesadillas, etc. were to be eaten first and then they could move on to the some-of-the-time choices - cookies, candy, chips, etc.

Our cooking projects were filled with all-the-time choices. Clearly there was a goal behind this - show the children that eating these foods could be fun and tasty.

One project that we did was a lot of fun, a little messy, absolutely delicious and it was an all-the-time treat.

Imagination in the Digital Age

Summer means longer days, swimming in the pool and relaxation. As a child, the days seem to stretch on forever and bring a world of possibilities for imagination and discovery. What better way to encourage that imaginative development than introducing new worlds through books?

Visits to the library are one way to provide resources for this. The libraries in the community are a treasure trove of story books, easy readers, novels, scientific resources, crafting ideas and cook books to name a few. But the libraries offer so much more! There are story times that help promote language development in children of all ages.

There are free movies and afternoon programs that incorporate songs and learning in fun, innovative ways. Chandler Public Library has many offerings to choose from and is a great family destination.

Of course, life often gets in the way and trips to the library don't happen as often as we'd like. There is another summer resource available that brings these stories and books into your home without ever leaving your home. Digital books are a new way to increase your library, without the need for extra shelves, tons of money or extra time.

Chandler library has this resource on their website. You can download books to your phone, computer, tablet or e-reader. It is available year round and only requires a library card and password.

How many times have you hit the beach this summer? Did you remember your itsy bitsy teeny weeny yellow polka dot bikini? If you listened to the song of the same name beforehand you probably would have! This Bryan Hyland tune hit #1 on the Billboard charts 54 years ago today. Back then bikinis were seen as pretty risqué, but after "Itsy Bitsy" hit the radio waves, bikini sales took off. <http://bit.ly/VnPLrs>

Sometimes it can be a struggle getting kids to eat healthy foods. So, why not turn it into a fun summer activity? This week, Pam Morris shares a cooking project that parents can do with their kids that helps show that healthy foods can be fun and delicious. One of her ideas for a treat is Watermelon Cookies!

Having grown up back East, it still amazes me that in the middle of July I should be getting ready for back to school! As a child, the summer was just getting started. So, while I resign myself to school supply shopping and first days of school looming, I also can't quite let go of summer fun!

Watermelon Cookies

The needed ingredients and tools included: a whole watermelon, cookie cutters, a paper plate for each child, a sharp knife (to be used by the adults) and sponges and paper towels (for clean up).

We took a whole watermelon, sliced it into rounds, about 1 inch or so thick. Each child received one watermelon round as their “dough” placed on top of a paper plate. You can use cutting boards if you have enough - one per child.

Get Up and Get Moving

This year at the JCC we have some amazing offerings for people of all ages who are interested in staying healthy and fit. Our enrichment classes for the younger group run from 3-4 pm. Mondays are reserved for All That Jazz. Tuesdays is a time for Yoga 4 Yeladim. Wednesdays we have Tots in Motion, leading a fun dance class. On Thursdays, we have Sportball for children ages 3-6 years old. Fridays is a time for Spanish with Crystal from 3:30-4:15pm.

For adults, we have a Zumba class each Monday, 5-6 pm. This is a great way for adults to get moving and get fit!

Around the Center

Preschool began this week at the JCC. After a wonderful summer camp, our staff spent a few days rejuvenating - their educational skills, their excitement for learning and their classrooms. On Monday, children entered the JCC, greeted by some

JCC alumni welcoming them back for a fun filled year. Their classrooms awaited - new experiences, new teachers and new friends. In Sarah's Two's room, "It's a Small World" theme beckoned their entry and each child found their names on tiny boats floating in the river.

Lindsay's Three's room took a literary track and all of her children are the "Cool Cats", each with their own monogrammed sunglasses on their doors. Pete the Cat is a favorite among our children and made for a fun first week theme.

The bulletin boards are filled with their photographs from the first few days of exploring. You can see their delight in the scarf play during music and MPR time with Eileen's Two's, Erica's

Monday & Friday—Water Day/Swim Day
Thursday, July 10—Pre-K is off to Chandler Library in the afternoon

3's Kylli & Aaryn

Wow! The K'tonton Tziporim had a busy and fun filled week both preparing for the Rock Show and doing Fourth of July themed crafts. Through out the week we had a great time practicing our Rock Show dance; we even got to practice on the stage on Tuesday and Wednesday! Our campers were so excited to perform for you on Wednesday night! Be sure to check out our Fourth of July crafts on our bulletin board and in our camp room. We loved making hand print flags and painting fireworks. The K'tonton Tziporim are excited for a great next week learning about Hanukkah!

Pre-K Shelby & Sivanne

What a fun week for room 14! The week started with an awesome swimming lesson where everyone showed their terrific front and back floats they've been practicing all summer. We've started our practice for the rock show, and can't wait for everyone else to see! We have had a ton of fun making our 4th of July crafts along with the ocean crafts we got to work on this week! Students also had fun learning Warrior pose this week in yoga, where we hold each pose and practice our counting skills. Can't wait for another exciting week. Have a safe and fun 4th of July!

Pre-K Scarlet & Tyler

What a fabulous week your little Dagim had! At the pool on Monday we finally put all of the big moves we've been working on together. Your little fishes can now do a breast stroke, arms and legs together! They had so much fun playing during free swim, diving for rings and using the float mats. We've been making different Fourth of July themed crafts and been very into making puzzles! During our MPR time, not only did we get to play and run around, but we had lots of time to practice our In Summer routine for the Rock Show. As a reminder, the Rock Show is next Thursday, July 10th at 6:30pm. If you have not brought in a white T-shirt, or given your child's teacher 3 dollars to purchase one, we need to have it by Monday. Also, please bring in a towel and a pair of sunglasses by Wednesday, July 9th. Next week's theme is Hanukkah! Have a safe and happy Fourth of July!
